

Joseph Roman is a 2011 graduate of Conemaugh Township Area Middle School/High School.

Upon graduating high school, Joe attended Slippery Rock University. He graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice.

After graduating from Slippery Rock, he took a part time job as a Correctional Officer at the Somerset County Jail. Due to minimal work hours, Joe found a more beneficial job as a Youth Care Worker at the Children's Home Society in Somerset, where he only worked for a few months. Joe then accepted the offer to become a Juvenile Probation Officer in Morgantown, West Virginia where he currently resides. Most recently, he was nominated to work as a Fusion Liaison Officer for the Department of Homeland Security for the State of West Virginia.

Joe is currently studying to complete his Master's Degree in Criminal Justice.

Joe stated, "I feel in the past few years since graduating from high school, I have accomplished a lot, but I still am looking forward to achieving my goals in the near future."

During his years at Conemaugh Township, Joe's favorite teacher was Tracy Durica. He stated, "From a professional standpoint, Mrs. Durica was a great teacher because she cared about teaching the students and would do anything to help you."

Joe's fondest memories at Conemaugh Township were based upon his athletic involvement. He golfed and played basketball and baseball at the high school.

He said, "I believe playing sports motivated me to my greatest potential, which helped me succeed athletically, academically, and socially."

Joe is engaged to Elise Augustine, whom he met in college. They will be married in May of 2018.
